

Wally
Byam's Caravanners

Introduction

This directory is a listing of all of those people who have been on a Wally Byam Caravan tour as of December 13, 1955.

These lists are made from the original lists of each tour with addresses given at the time of the tour. Where address changes are known they have been corrected. As we felt that a listing of the actual tour, made at the time of the tour, was more important than an up to date present day directory, there may be some inaccuracies in this list.

Although there were several unofficial tours preceding the Central American Tour in 1952, it still is considered the first one. The next was down the West Coast of Mexico in 1953. Two trailers went to Europe in the summer of 1953, but this is hardly considered a tour. In the winter of '54 we went down the Eastern coast of Mexico, out of Brownsville, Texas and crossed the Tehautepec Peninsula. In the summer of '54 we toured Western Canada. In the winter of '55 we had the world's largest invasion of wheel vehicles to a foreign country (487 trailer units) down the West coast of Mexico to Acapulco and Mexico City. In the summer of '55 we toured Eastern Canada and Nova Scotia.

The tours just grew like Topsy, or a snow ball; I have always had an itchy foot, my ancestors before me—seafaring folk and covered wagon western emigrants—instilled it in me. Many times friends who had recently purchased an Airstream trailer would ask me if they couldn't go along on some of my interesting trips. So the first groups were small, three or four trailers, then nine or ten, then fifteen or twenty. As the trailer magazines and newspapers heard of these trips and publicized them interest grew and the tours became larger. But they are still the same as they have been, a group of congenial people traveling along together, each paying their own expenses and operating as a Mobile Democracy. The majority vote always rules.

Many good things come from these tours, but personally I think one of the greatest things are the heart-warming friendships that grow out of people traveling together. Strange to say, the worst roads seem to make the warmest friendships. And the unquestionable goodwill built up for America in the foreign lands that we visit was best stated by the Chamber of Commerce President in Mazatlan, Mexico, who learned English from a text book. In the simple statement, nearly as sturdily strong as Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, he said you people come to us as a great army, and it must take the organization of an army to move so many vehicles and so many people over so many miles. But you come as an army of homes, and not as war machines, and you set your homes down beside our homes and you become a member of our community and being humans on this world together we all love each other. The home is the basic cell of society and nothing can bind international friendship as great as the home-loving spirit that you bring with you with your rolling homes to the permanent homes and people of our land.
