Verlene came to the trailer at 7:15 and we had breakfast together. Andy wanted to go home with Verlene. I drained the tanks and filled the fresh water. I went to Camping World but they were out of the leveling blocks I wanted. I asked if I could be parked close to building where the activity was because I had a bad foot. They found a place in the handicap parking. We went to Walmart to restock on almost all foodstuffs. It was in the nineties to day – not very comfortable outside and really gives the air conditioner a work out.

We registered this morning and met some friends from the Northwest Landmarks Caravan. Since there wasn't any activity I was interested in in the morning we decided to go to the Aztec Ruins National Monument about 14 miles away. Got my National Park Passport stamped and toured the ruins. These are not Aztec Indian ruins they Native Americans from the year 1000 or earlier that lived here. I went to the presentation by the Airstream factory rep and won a drawing for $250 of Airstream parts or service. This evening was the opening ceremony with the parade of unit flags. Afterword we chatted with friends including Don and Gail Williams.

Not much of interest going on at the rally today so we decided to go to the Chaco Culture National Historical Park. It was a fairly long drive (96 miles) made more tedious with 13 miles of dirt road, five of which are especially rough. The ruins are well kept and accessible with a little walking. The canyon is long and narrow (about 4 miles x ½ mile) surrounded by high cliffs (500 ft. or more). It was really hot today, probably 95 degrees. This evening there is a band for entertainment after the announcements.

We went to the First Presbyterian Church of Farmington today. They are a PCUSA congregation. They were friendly and welcomed us to their worship. We went to Walmart to pick up a couple of things then went back to the trailer to get ready for the Pet Show. Andy won second place in the best looking category. We had supper at the Casino. We went to the evening program that featured a program by Gene Corbin that was very good.

Not much of interest going on at the rally today. It was tour day and we didn't sign up for any as we had already been to all the tour places. We did the laundry and I got a ream of paper to print this diary on. I spent the afternoon printing the update pages of this diary. Then I went over to the convention center where there is WiFi and cleared out my email. Doris played with the Jam Session during the Ice Cream Social.

Today I went to the Casino Restaurant at 9:00 AM to get the problem with my bill straighten out. I talked with a gentleman that understood the problem and would correct it, if both pending charges turn out to be actual charges which he thinks they won't. I went to a seminar on refrigerators, furnaces and hot water heaters. I need to add better fans to the refrigerator. These pictures are of the Canadian Shelties that were not in the pet show. They would have been serious competition for Andy.
