We went to the Region 12 Breakfast this morning. Then we took Andy to the vet. We had made an appointment for 10:30 AM with the vet yesterday because he wouldn't drink water and it was very hot – the trailer was about 85. The vet said he was a little dehydrated and kept him until 4:30 PM to hydrate him. He gave me an antibiotic to give him for the next week. In the afternoon I went to the first of three Caravan Leaders Training Classes.

I tried to sleep in this morning after getting up at 2:00 AM to take Andy to do his business. It was cloudy and cooler today. I went to the Caravan Leaders seminar from 1:00 PM to 4:00 PM. Then we went to the WBCCI Amateur Radio Club dinner at Golden Corral. We got back to the trailer just before 7:00 PM and Doris went to the talent show. I didn't take any pictures today so here are some from prior days.

Not much of interest today. Andy is still not totally well. I went to my Caravan Leader Seminar from 1:00PM to 4:00PM. Later we went to the casino restaurant and got two prime rib dinners to go, compliments of the food and drink manager. He gave them to us as a consolation for the credit card confusion. This evening was the installation of officers of the WBCCI. We elected not to go and stay in the trailer and watch the storm develop around us.

Today is the 4th of July with a region 12 Picnic at 11:20 AM and a parade that Andy is in at 3:00 PM. Doris and Marla were the only entries with pets. They were the second and third place in the best looking class in the pet show. They were last in the parade.

Departed: Farmington 8:00 AM Arrived: 11:15 AM Miles: 215
Many left before us and there were many still there when we left. We didn't sleep well last night for the fireworks that were going off nearby. I was finding it hard to stay awake while Doris slept. We came within 10 miles or so of the formation called Shiprock. I didn't disconnect and I drained the tanks before I took a three hour nap. Andy seems a little better but still hasn't pooped. He vomited three times last night.

Location: Tiffany RV Park, Mesa, AZ Date: 6 July 2015
Departed: Holbrook 7:00 AM Arrived: 10:30 AM Miles: 185
After a long sleep and after an uneventful drive we arrived in Mesa. The trip was made without a stop. We went to Brian and Kim's house at about 12:30 PM. There we did the laundry had a great enchilada dinner and visited until 10:00 PM. Doris swam in their pool. Andy finally pooped this evening. He is getting back to normal.
